Redesigned and Reimagined

How will the future workplace look and function?

Amid so much uncertainty, there is only one thing we can be sure of: things will never be the same again.

Technology has enabled the white-collar economy to be run from a million kitchen tables and while that does not have to bring about the death of the office, it surely cannot be designed to function in the way it did before.

The question is: what happens next? What are the challenges? Where are the opportunities? And how will we connect, create and communicate at work?

Join our panel of experts as we ask them to answer the question, how will the future workplace look and function? They will be discussing the purpose of the workplace in a post Covid-19 world, how to maximise the value of your property assets, and how to make your building and workplace more attractive to occupiers.
